Overall, I really liked the designs that were presented in the mockups.

There was a small problem with the looping of videos without js, but I think we found a solution.
If not looping the whole video is the only other choice or I can provide a short JS script that can be attached at the bottom of the html.

I liked the second home page more than the first. Specifically I appreciated the space that was on the page. Was confused about the spacing at the top but I wasn't sure which one I would like better whether it to span the entire navbar and split evenly or to be left aligned. I decided with space-between for now.

As for the tricks page I preferred the first mockup more as it allows for the user to see more of the tricks. Less clicks necessary. Also not that many tricks are necessary just a few is fine.
